1. A hard surface road [#924] runs from Humenne southward to Hungary via Michalovce and the same type of hard surface road [#924] runs from Humenne northeast to Rasko via Smina. The roads are over two lanes wide and are considered to be first class highways.
2. Both are all weather roads and can absorb heavy usage. The roads have a good solid foundation and are macadam surfaced. The terrain through which the roads run is hilly but the curves are shallow.
3. A loose surface, all weather road [#909] runs from Humenne northward to Hankovce. Another loose surface, all weather road [#909] runs from Udvake northward to Jablonka via Zubne. The roads are over one lane in width and are able to absorb heavy usage. The roads are gravel surfaced and have a natural solid foundation of rock and sand.
4. The loose surface, all weather roads [#909] and the hard surface road [#924] are used extensively by trucks which run between Czechoslovakia and Poland.
5. A number of loose surface, dry weather dirt roads [#935] run in the vicinity of Chlumec, Gruzovec, Kamienka and Rovne. The dirt roads are over one lane in width. They have a natural foundation of rock, gravel and sand. The roads occasionally are able to bear heavy usage.
